

A New addition to your library: Book Review

Supporting Research Students, by Barbara Allan.

Facet publishing. 2010

ISBN 978-1-85604-685-5

The importance of supporting the information needs of research students is becoming basic for all the libraries. The book "Supporting Research Students" authored by Barbara Allan timely offers guidance to the library and information science professionals. The key areas covered are:

- Research and research process
- Research student's experience
- Research skills training
- Supporting research students in academic libraries and information services
- Virtual graduate school
- Introduction to research communities
- Professional development

The publication is an essential text for all the library and information professionals. It is also useful to Library and Information students to develop understanding about the subject.